VETERAN BLACKSMITH SHOD HORSE AT 90

Charles Gibbs, healthy and agile for all his 90 years, came out of retirement at Edmonton recently, donned a blacksmith apron and put shoes on the 30-year-old mare Nellie, owned by Joseph Haire, who is 100 years old.

The event was staged in a local blacksmith shop and attracted a large crowd. Though Haire, who is still hale and hearty, had never met Gibbs before, the pair had a great time after the shoeing talking over old times.

For Charles Gibbs it marked the fulfilment of an ambition. Born on a farm near Saginaw, Mich., he promised himself years ago that at the age of 90 he would shoe a horse, and all present agreed that he had done an expert job. He came to Edmonton in 1900 and was a blacksmith and horse dealer for a number of years. He learned his trade in Saginaw and claims he was "the best oxen shod in Saginaw county." Finally he turned to farming, and still owns the farm near Athabasca from which he retired four years ago.

Gibbs read a newspaper story reporting that Joseph Haire had celebrated his 100th birthday by hitching Nellie up and plowing a field in north Edmonton.

"By golly, I'd like to meet that man and to shoe his horse for him," said Gibbs. "Keep in touch with me and I'll let you know when Nellie needs shoes," said Haire to Gibbs' messenger, and a few months later he sent word that all was in readiness. Canadian Blacksmith.

A wedding of interest to the Champion and Carmangay districts occurred at the Presbyterian manse, Lethbridge on Tuesday, June 22nd, when Madeline June, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Siler, Champion, became the bride of Lethrie Earl, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Burke of Carmangay.

Only the parents of the bride and groom were present. Rev. J. E. Hepburn officiated.

The happy couple left immediately for Waterton Lakes and later they will visit at Kalispell, Montana.

LOCAL GARDENS WELL ADVANCED, FINE CROP

Gardens in the district are providing their share of the daily food needs. Lettuce, radish and onions are quite common fare and new pea pods are to be seen on the vines. Beet greens and spinach will be available within a week and potatoes and other vegetables are showing good growth. Rain has been a big feature in the growth of gardens, but last year it was amazing to see the growth that was promoted through continuous cultivation.

Several people in town are making an effort to restore lawns destroyed by drought during the past few years.

As I lay stretching myself on the broad of my back after the cozy sleep of the night, the thought of the schoolmaster came to me, to wonder the fairness of the morning. So, with an old broom on my shoulder and much fear and trembling in my heart, I got up bright and early to make a call on Mr. Michael Hughes, the local schoolmaster. With any ugly, hard job on hand, I have a way of thinking that nothing much is gained by just burning up daylight. The ground was frozen hard.

A few years before, the settlers had got together and put up a log schoolhouse on the townline, a tidy little school down from the Marshall farm. One foot-loose itinerant after another turned his hand to school teaching, and earned a scanty wage. The quarter for each scholar who trudged down to his classes to get a little schooling. But bright shillings being a scarce commodity in Mono, the schoolmaster shifted round weekly from family to family, fetching the cream of local gossip while he, and getting bed and board to boot. He was the trifling cash that came his way. And, for some time, the housewife usually found that the man or letters was a man of parts. The younger children were somewhat regular in their attendance, but, in the winter months, winter time, big clumsy youths as a rule went also to the local school to learn to write and figure. Many of them had hair showing on the face, and the diseases were common among them for which scratching and sulking are the principal remedies. They came packed with a lusty devilment that sometimes overtaxed the strength and courage of the schoolmaster. One after another the teachers had been beaten up, and had left for other fields of effort.

In the spring of the year, Michael Hughes had drifted into the township, out of nowhere seemingly, and had tackled the job of teaching the local school. He was the tall, lank figure of a man, neither young nor old, but of five and thirty, which, of course, a mere old age to the mind of any child. His body was as lithe as a gad and as supple as the wind. His features were finely chiselled on fine, yet robust lines, and a soft, silken-like beard hid a mouth that was gentle, even to weakness. He thrashed civility under the skins of the big yokels that fell and so established himself securely as master of the school. Old Hickory Mick earned himself a tenuous reputation among the plow boys of Mono as a disciplinarian and wielder of the cane.

The business of bounding around as a nuisance to the farmers' wives did not fit in with his notions of comfortable living; and the master promptly solved the problem by moving into a small log house that had recently been built on a curiously steep bank hard by the west end of the school. There was little household trumpery about, but sufficient for his purpose. The parents of his pupils paid most of the school fees with food and firing. The steepness of his land was such that no plowman has ever turned any of it over. Years after, the little plot was occupied by Jimmie Buchanan, a cobbler who kept bees; but in the master's time it was covered by a scrubby growth and crowned by a gnarled old thorn-tree. Folk called his place Whistling Hill after Knocknashaulin, in County Down. All the children knew the master's was a gentle place, and greatly haunted by the little people. One Holloway said there separate passages of light, like tiny ribbons, dancing on the hillside below his cabin; and there were soft, piping sounds also heard about the place, like the small, thin whistle a drake gives after ducking himself in a pond.

I found the one door of the schoolmaster's house slightly ajar, and, sticking my head in, I saw the man's face as he stooped over a small table, placing, cooking his breakfast in a big black, frying pan. With the broom still clutched in my hands, I stole in, and quietly sat down on a short log. I kept my mouth tight shut to hold my heart from peeping out.

Old Hickory Mick swung round, holding the long-handled spade aloft. He gave his head a startled jerk in the air as he spied me sitting there. He looked like to eat me all up without a grain of salt.

"You little red-headed son of Bala!" he shouted at me, "how dare you set foot in my house without knocking at the door?"

"Oh, sir," said I, "that's not my name. I'm Daddy Slater, sir; and I've come down," said I, "to look after things at the school, and to rid up your dirty old cabin as well."

The man froze with a hard stare.

"By the hole of my coat!" he exclaimed, after thinking the thing over. "Who gave you instructions to come down here?"

"Oh, sir," said I, "it was Mrs. Marshall, sir. She said I might stay at her place if I rid up your dirty old cabin."

There was a pause.

"Are you frightened?" the man asked me, screwing his mouth up with a very small smile.

"Yes, sir," said I, "I'm scared stiff, you will beat me with a stick. But I'm not afraid to rid up your dirty old cabin, sir. So I just upped and ined."

"Well, Paddy," the man told me after a further pause, "the Greesh had a brave word for a lad who feared a dander, yet strode out into the snow like that."

"Yes, sir," said I.

"And speaking of words," he thundered at me, "it's a careless case of words, you are to call my house a 'dirty old cabin'!"

"Yes, sir," said I.

"And it is not a dirty cabin. I'll have you know, because it is sweet and clean—though perhaps a trifle untidy."

"Yes, sir," said I.

"And it is not a cabin at all. I'll have you know, because it has boards and a roof."

"Yes, sir," said I.

"He shook the pan at me.

"It is true they got their knowledge in small doses; but there was plenty of pep and dash while he kept them at it. And what he gave them were actually their legs. At the first sign of listlessness, he promptly bundled the small bodies out to tumble about in the fresh air. In his calm and simple theory, the teacher was wasting his time unless he actually held the pupils' direct attention. And, in his opinion, twenty minutes was a long time for a young child or an old man to keep his undivided attention fixed on any one thing. In any event, for the first year, I got my instructions at Whistling Hill and not in the classes at the schoolhouse."

Old air, said I, "I am a growing boy."

"Very neatly put," the man remarked.

So clearing the corner of the table, Mr. Hughes used a sheet of The Globe newspaper as a cover for two plates.

"Ah! ha!" he told me, "you see how we do things among the hills of Mono?"

The globe is a round as a ball, and the sun is in the middle. In this bachelor's hall.

"Draw 't' draw 't'!" he urged me, and salt and pepper to your taste and liking."

It was a case of heel, toe, down they go—heads and all.

"If you dine often with me, Paddy Slater, you will soon become a man of parts," the master informed me, and to start your education, let me instruct you that such speckled bread as you see there was first cooked by Venus with her own hands on the hills of Helicon; whence comes the pretty legend that a mess of them works a low charm."

Michael reddened his pipe in the ash; and the man blew tiny smoke rings as we sat talking and conversing together. It was heart-fitting to Paddy to be sitting there in the company of the great man without a care or trouble in the world.

On a sudden, the master leapt up. "Let us be off on our way to the school in the name of God!" he exclaimed.

And the master and I then set off to the fire at the schoolhouse. He was in the spirit, but was singing a mournful song.

MY COLLEGE RITE
But drearily and wearily
The snow is drifting by. Yet, to
And clearly and wearily
It beats my weary sigh,
Far from wild Niagara's roar,
To my spangling wave of blue,
To the hostess in the fairy glen,
And gentle Colleen Bue.

He was a simple man and as straight as a candle. To keep up with him, I took grown-up strides beside him, thinking I was now myself quite a man entirely.

It was in this way that I fell in with Old Hickory Mick, and I served him the faithful service of a life.

Five years. I was the only confidant the solitary man had; and he opened his heart and mind freely to me because I knew I liked him.

At the time we buried him at Centreville, his past remained a mystery so I was concerned. My own fancy has always been that Michael Hughes had clean forgotten it himself. Everything in his life story stood out sharp and clear like a jaunting car ride in Dublin town; but at that point the thread of memory would not have broken. The man brought a wealth of learning and personality with him from behind that veil of oblivion; but so far as his personal concerns he kept to himself.

Behind was concerned, he knew no more about it than does a babe at its mother's breast. After the undertaker gets the body, old Michael Hughes, that, on my awakening, no more about it than does a babe at its mother's breast.

To Create Better Feeling

Breaking Down Of International
Feudalities Is A Splendid Thing

America is going English; English is going American. There is a general merging, at least in superficial matters, of two distinct civilizations.

It is a splendid thing. In fact from this peculiar phenomenon we may draw a great moral and a lesson in the seeds of hope. For such, after all, is the only true internationalism.

which must spring from a community of interests and a commonness of tastes. We understand a fellow who wears clothes like ours and who plans their own; a time when Frenchmen will not be regarded by the Germans as swindlers, and the English as swindlers.

About Honey

Colour Is Not A Factor In Honey
Food Value

The increased use of honey, as a food, for instance, and as a developer of energy for athletes, and an ingredient in home cooking, has not yet dispelled many popular fallacies connected with it. Contrary to general opinion, colour does not affect the food value of honey in any way.

Honey varies in colour, from water-white to a very dark brown, according to the kind of flowers from which it is gathered. The difference in colour is caused by certain substances in the nectar of different flowers that absorb the rays of light in varying degrees.

The favours of honey vary just as much as its colour, and there is no difficulty in finding a flavour to suit the most discriminating taste. As a rule, the lighter the colour of the honey, the more delicate is its flavour. Therefore, when honey is to be substituted for sugar in cooking, it is the light-coloured honey that are recommended. When honey is used in place of jams and marmalades, such and every colour or flavour has its advocate.

Granulation of honey, as many people seem to think, is not an indication of adulteration. Rather, it is a sign of purity. All Canadian honeys are either soured or later, depending largely upon the proportion of the two invert sugars it contains. The greater the proportion of dextrose to fructose, the longer the honey will remain in liquid form.

Leucosis, or fruit sugar found in honey, is non-granulating and is the sweetest sugar so far found in nature. It is usually the predominating sugar in honey. Dextrose, or grape sugar, is a rapid granulating sugar, and is predominant in commercial syrups. Granulation of honey is hastened by low temperatures and high temperatures retard it.

Honey sold in glass containers is usually heated when packed, for the purpose of keeping the honey liquid for as long a period as possible. Rapid granulation usually produces a coarse texture while slow granulation results in a fine texture. Granulated honey can be brought back to its liquid form by standing the container in water and heating it to 150 degrees Fahrenheit. A higher temperature is likely to darken the colour and destroy the aroma and flavour.

HER LIMBS WERE ALMOST CRIPPLED

Suffered With Sciatica For 25 Years

Those who are subject to sciatica you should know, I pray God, have suffered for years before they found out how to obtain relief.

For 25 years I suffered from sciatica in my right side, and I had backaches which forced me to remain in bed for two or three weeks at a time. I was kept up in the mornings, my arms and legs used to pain me almost unbearably. One day I heard of Kruschen Salts. I took a bottle of them without feeling much improvement. I tried a second bottle, and that time I felt better. I have kept on taking Kruschen ever since."

(Mrs.) H.L.

The pains of sciatica are frequently caused by an excess of uric acid in the body. Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts are notable for their power in dissolving uric acid. Other ingredients help to assist the internal organs to expel the dissolved acid from the system.

Little Helps For This Week

The very God of peace sanctify you wholly, and I pray God, your whole spirit and soul and body be preserved blameless. Faithful is He that calleth you, who will also do it. 1 Thess. 5:23-24.

Be still my soul, the Lord is on your side. Bear patiently the cross of grief and pain. Leave us to Thy God to order and direct. In every change He faithful will remain.

It was no relief from temporal ills which I promised. Next day the God of might sent them to the state of the lions, but it was still His mercy if it but kept them unspotted from the world. It might expose them to insult and wrong, still they received it as mercy if it established them in every virtue and work.

How many of you are content with such faithfulness as is on the part of your heavenly Father, and this is indeed the tone of your prayers?

Higher Railway Speeds
Stream Lining And Diesel Engines
Produce New Fast Records

During the past two or three years railway speeds have been increased from 100 to 150 miles per hour, and stream-lining design and Diesel engines, although some remarkable records, undreamed of a few years ago, have been made by steam locomotives.

The announcement that the Broadview Limited between New York and Chicago will, with a new locomotive now being built, travel at a sustained rate of 100 miles per hour, is not only a triumph for the stream-lining, but also a triumph for the Diesel engine.

The attempt at such an objective was almost inevitable. The present time for the distance by the Pennsylvania Railroad is 16½ hours, under the proposed schedule this would be about nine hours, the distance being 150 miles.

At present the German State Railways hold the first half dozen or so records for high speed, as recorded with Diesel trains, the best being between Berlin and Hanover, 158 miles, at an average speed of 82½ miles an hour—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

Heavy Flying Boats
Ships Weighing Thirty-Five Tons
For Atlantic Air Service

Flying boats weighing approximately 80,000 pounds (about 35½ tons) have been designed for the Atlantic air service, it was learned in London.

The ships to be built by Short Brothers of Southampton, are expected to be ready for trial flights in 1939. They will have a cruising speed of 180 miles per hour, and will be twice the weight of the Caldonia and Cambrils, types of flying boat at present being used on Imperial Airways air routes.

The new flying boats will have accommodation for 20 passengers and a small quantity of mail.

GOOD BUSINESS PASSING OUR DOOR

Some effort should be made to put the south approach into Champion from the highway into such shape that it would be inviting to all traffic leading into Champion. This road if put into shape would be the means of bringing to Champion a lot of nice business, otherwise going past our door.

The Elevator Companies situated on this road would no doubt be interested in some improvement plan, and no doubt would contribute something towards putting it into such shape that it would be permanent connecting route into Champion.

One tourist the other day came through this approach from the south, and before he left town he had spent $5.00. This is good cash business, and should be encouraged. If we should get say 200 cars, coming through this end of town at an average of $3.00, we would have $600.00 which is not bad for an extra avenue of business.

The condition of this road is such that it is not safe for traffic during the wet periods. In the fall if the weather should be wet, like some former years, it is nearly impossible to get the grain into the elevators. A committee should be appointed to make a survey of the approximate cost of building up this road, and erecting a sign at the corner.

Industry in the United States pays 24 cents in taxes for every dollar it spends on pay rolls, the National Association of Manufacturers reported a few weeks ago.

Association officials declared the figures were based on a survey of conditions in 104 companies representing 43 leading industries. For each dollar paid in dividends, the taxes paid were $1.42.

As was already known, the oil industry was the leading contributor to the treasuries of the tax jurisdiction. Its taxes were 25 per cent of sales.

Public utilities, according to the report, paid in taxes 59 per cent of payrolls. $1.028 per employee, 16 per cent of sales, and 21 per share of their common stock. Art. 25.

BASEBALL CHATTER

A splendid crowd of ball fans turned out Sunday to see Picture Butte and Champion, play on the local diamond. The attendance was estimated at 400, very encouraging indeed for the boys who do their stuff for your entertainment. The collections taken Sunday was $17, an average of a little over four cents each.

The funds of the club are exceptionally low and the boys hope that you fans, will continue your fine support, with say at least, a time average. A little more money will be of the greatest assistance to the club, and will enable them to work with more harmony and a spirit that produces a better game of ball.

Now at the next game let us see what you can do in the way of raising the dough.

In spite of a combination of dust and wind, a good attendance of fans was on hand to see Picture Butte and Champion play at Picture Butte, last Friday. Considering the unfavorable weather conditions, a good game was played, with both teams sharing the honors of play. The score was 3:2 in favor of Champion.

Before a crowd of approximately 400 fans, Champion defeated Picture Butte by a score of 3:2 on Sunday afternoon on the local diamond. Each club displayed a snappy brand of ball, including two double plays. In the third inning Champion's batsman connected with the ball and brought in 4 runs. No runs were scored again until the eighth inning when both teams came through with two runs. Battery: Champion, Robinson and Wattle; Picture Butte, Turner and Watson. Umpire, Kulpas.

The Champion Club have joined the Wheat Belt Ball League, together with Nanton, Stavely, High River, Blackie and Little Chicago.

The league games will commence early in July. The schedule is now being prepared and will be announced later.

Champion plays at Carmangay, Friday night June 25, and Stavely, Sunday June 27th.

Much thought is being given by local farmers over the fact that dry weather prevailed on Monday, the summer solstice, and the fact that a south west wind was blowing makes a three month period of dry weather, to their way of thinking, most apparent. March 21st was wet and the three months following gave forth their share of moisture. However as most every prophecy and even scientists statements have been broken during the past few years, the above may not be the case. At least we hope not. Crops are heavy and in consequence are going to need abundant moisture. The strong wind of the past three days, which rose in intensity on Wednesday is causing considerable drifting and also taking badly needed moisture. A few instances of burning in heavy crops is noticeable.

BOARD OF TRADE FOR BARONS

Barons citizens form board of trade at well attended meeting called last Friday. The evening was devoted to organization work, officers elected and committees struck to canvas for membership. Officers elected were: President, A. S. Roberts; vice-president, C. J. Miller; secretary-treasurer, A. Andrew.

The next meeting will be called early in July to hear the reports of committees and other matters pertaining to the new organization.
